NEW QUESTION: 1

What can be defined as a data structure that enumerates digital certificates that were issued to CAs but have been invalidated by their issuer prior to when they were scheduled to expire?

- A. Untrusted certificate list
- B. Authority revocation list
- C. Certificate revocation tree
- D. Certificate revocation list

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Internet Security Glossary (RFC2828) defines the Authority Revocation List (ARL) as a data structure that enumerates digital certificates that were issued to CAs but have been invalidated by their issuer prior to when they were scheduled to expire.

Do not to confuse with an ARL with a Certificate Revocation List (CRL). A certificate revocation list is a mechanism for distributing notices of certificate revocations. The question specifically mentions "issued to CAs" which makes ARL a better answer than CRL.

<http://rfclibrary.hosting.com/rfc/rfc2828/rfc2828-29.asp> $ certificate revocation list (CRL)

(I)

A data structure that enumerates digital certificates that have been invalidated by their issuer prior to when they were scheduled to expire. (See: certificate expiration, X.509 certificate revocation list.)

<http://rfclibrary.hosting.com/rfc/rfc2828/rfc2828-17.asp> $ authority revocation list (ARL)

(I)

A data structure that enumerates digital certificates that were issued to CAs but have been invalidated by their issuer prior to when they were scheduled to expire. (See: certificate expiration, X.509 authority revocation list.)

In a few words: We use CRL's for end-user cert revocation and ARL's for CA cert revocation - both can be placed in distribution points.

NEW QUESTION: 3

In what LAN topology do all the transmissions of the network travel the full length of cable and are received by all other stations?

- A. Star topology
- B. Ring topology
- C. FDDI topology
- D. Bus topology

Answer: D

Explanation:

In a bus topology, all the transmissions of the network travel the full length of cable and are received by all other stations. This topology is associated with Ethernet LAN media access. In a ring topology, all nodes are connected by unidirectional transmission links to form a closed loop. In a star technology, all stations are directly connected to a central device. FDDI is not a LAN topology, but a LAN media access method.
